TRAM Status Codes Indicating "Blackout Period" in Effect for "Intent-to-Use" Trademark Applications

Trademark Rule 2.76, 37 CFR 2.76, provides that an applicant pursuing registration of its mark under the "intent to use" provisions of the Trademark Act (i.e., an application filed under Trademark Act Section 1(b), 15 U.S.C. §1051(b)) may amend the application "to allege use of the mark in commerce under section 1(c) of the Act at any time between the filing of the application and the date the examiner approves the mark for publication or the date of expiration of the six-month response period after issuance of a final action." (emphasis added). If an amendment alleging use of a mark that is the subject of an intent to use application is filed outside the time period specified in Rule 2.76, it will be returned to the applicant or its attorney.

In addition, under Trademark Rule 2.88, 37 CFR 2.88, an intent to use applicant may not file a statement of use prior to the issuance of the notice of allowance. If a statement of use is filed before the notice of allowance issues, it will not be considered and will be returned to the applicant or its attorney.

These two rules combine to create a period of time, during the prosecution of an intent to use application, when neither an amendment to allege use nor a statement of use can be filed. This period has become popularly known as the "blackout period." In a number of instances, amendments to allege use have been filed for intent to use applications which have "entered" the blackout period. This notice is intended to (1) assist applicants and their attorneys who need to determine whether a pending intent to use application has entered the blackout period and (2) provide guidance as to the filing of amendments to allege use so that they will be considered timely filed prior to the onset of the blackout period.

Preventing the Onset of the Blackout Period

In general, an intent to use applicant that has "control" over the further prosecution of its application file runs little risk that the file will enter the blackout period without the applicant's knowledge. For example, if the Examining Attorney has issued a non-final typed Office action or a non-final Priority action, the applicant is required to file a response to prevent abondment of the application. In these cases, the applicant has "control" over the further processing of the application by virtue of the fact that the examiner will not resume processing until the requisite response is filed. It follows, then, that the examiner will not "approve the mark for publication," thus commencing the blackout period, when a response to an Office action or Priority action is outstanding. Though this is only a general rule, exceptions are unlikely to occur.

Checking the Status of an Application

To guard against exceptions to the above general rule, or to check the "status" of an application in which the applicant does not have "control" over prosecution, a call to the Trademark Status Line should be made. This automated service can be accessed by callers using touch tone telephones to obtain status and status date information regarding trademark applications and registrations. The number for the Trademark Status Line is (703) 557-8747; the line can be accessed from 6:30 A.M. to midnight (Eastern Standard Time), Monday through Friday.

An intent to use applicant checking on the status of its application through the status line must enter its eight digit serial number and the "#" sign, after the welcoming message and tone. The eight digit serial number of an application consists of a two digit series code and a six digit number; if the number following the series code for a particular application is less than six digits, a sufficient number of leading zeros must be added to the number so that a total of six digits are entered after the series code.

If, after a serial number is entered, the status of the corresponding application is revealed to be any of the following, than the blackout period is in effect because the mark has been approved for publication and a notice of allowance has not yet issued:

Status Code	Status Line Report
680	Approved for Publication (by the examiner)
681	Publication/Registration review complete (by the Law Office clerk)
686	Published for Opposition
689	Notice of Allowance—Withdrawn
690	Notice of Allowance—Cancelled
692	Withdrawn from publication
693	Withdrawn from registration—Juristiction restored (to examiner)
694	Withdrawn from registration
715	Cancelled—Restored to Pendency (Indicates subject registration number was assigned in error and correction requires restoration of the application to pendency)
716	Inadvertantly issued registration number—Cancelled (Indicates the subject registration number was assigned in error and has been cancelled)
765	Concurrent use proceeding terminated—granted
766	Concurrent use proceeding terminated—denied
771	Concurrent use proceeding pending
772	Interference proceeding pending
773	Interference proceeding terminated
774	Opposition pending
775	Opposition dismissed
777	Opposition dismissed—See TTAB records
779	Opposition sustained
801	Opposition instituted
802	Request for extension of time to file opposition
803	Amendment after publication

The reports provided by the Trademark Status Line will not refer to the listed numerical status codes; these codes are only displayed on visual display terminals of the Trademark Reporting and Monitoring (TRAM) System used within the PTO. Certain status reports listed above, e.g., those corresponding to status codes 693 and 715, may appear to suggest that an application is not actually in the blackout period. This is not necessarily so; in some cases, a mark may be withdrawn from registration or publication without "undoing" the examiner's approval of the mark for publication.

Beating the Onset of the Blackout Period

If an intent to use applicant calls the Trademark Status Line about a particular application and the reported status is one of those listed above, then the amendment to allege use should not be filed since the blackout period has begun. On the other hand, if the call to the Trademark Status LIne does not reveal the onset of the blackout period, then the amendment to allege use may be filed.

Of course, it is always possible that the mark could be approved for publication on the same day, but shortly after, the applicant has checked the Trademark Status Line. The status of an application, as listed in the TRAM System, is updated immediately when an examiner records an action in regard to the application. Thus, in theory, it might appear that an intent to use application could enter the blackout period within hours after the applicant has checked out the status line. However, Office policy holds that the blackout period does not begin until the day after a mark is approved for publication. Therefore, the intent to use applicant that wishes to file an amendment to allege use can always "beat the onset" of the blackout period if (1) a call to the Trademark Status Line reveals that the application has not entered the blackout period, and (2) the amendment to allege use is filed the same day by U.S. Postal Service Express Mail in accordance with PTO Rule 1.10, 37 CFR 1.10. Even if the examiner approves the applicant's mark for publication the same day that the amendment to allege use is mailed in accordance with Rule 1.10, the amendment will be deemed timely filed prior to the onset of the blackout period.

Reference Collections of U.S. Patents Available for Public Use in Patent Depository Libraries

The following libraries, designated as Patent Depository Libraries (PDLs), receive current issues of U.S. Patents and maintain collections of earlier-issued patents. The scope of these collections varies from library to libary, ranging from patents of only recent years to all or most of the patents issued since 1790.

These patent collections, which are organized in patent number sequence, are available for use by the public free of charge. Each of the PDLs, in addition, offers supplemental reference publications of the U.S. Patent Classification System, including the Manual of Classification, Index to the U.S. Patent Classification, Classification Definitions, and provides technical staff assistance in their use to aid the public, in gaining effctive access to information contained in patents. CASSIS (Classification And Search Support Information System); which provides direct, on-line access to Patent and Trademark Office data, is available at all PDLs. Facilities for making paper copies of patents from either microfilm or paper collections are generally provided for a fee.

Since there are variations in the scope of patent collections among the PDLs and in their hours of service to the public, anyone contemplating use of the patents at a particular library is urged to contact that library, in advance, about its collection and hours in order to avert possible inconvenience.

SECTION 1.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

SECTION 2.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

SECTION 1.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).
